Introduction

The contents of this book may be related to the summer months prior to events of 9/11 and the fact that there are more Jews in the area around New York than there are in Israel. According to the American Jewish Year Book (2018), the total number of Jews in New York, Newark and Jersey City is 20.3 million. Israel's 2017 population was 8.712 million.

As I've explained in Chapter 2, many of my Jewish friends in New York had Mezuzahs on the frame of their apartment doors. A Mezuzah is a rectangular holder for parchment that contains phrases from Deuteronomy and Ecclesiastes that say to use God's name as a shield against evil.
The summer before the events of 9/11, my freelance work as a technical writer in the computer business (which was the work I did before starting to write doctor books) was very quiet. I lived in the Upper West Side neighborhood near Central Park and began to visit Barnes and Noble. The titles in the New Age section attracted my attention and I started buying Ruth Montgomery's books. I spent entire days at the Loeb boathouse in Central Park and then continued reading at night in my apartment. After reading all of Ruth Montgomery's books, I moved on to most of the famous New Age writers' books sold at Barnes and Noble. Other authors included:

Drunvalo Melchizedek
Lynn Picknett and Clive Prince
Barbara Marciniak
Barbara Hand Clow
Dr. Norma Milanovich
Gregg Braden
Lee Carroll
Ashayana Deane
José Argüelles
Amorah Quan Yin
Findhorn Garden Books
Anastasia Books
Robert Bruce
G.W. Hardin and Julia Ingram
Shakti Gawain
Lynn Grabhorn

When there were no more New Age titles for me to read, I remembered a New Age store in Greenwich Village that sold books. I can remember the owner saying to me “I don't know if you're ready for these.” I bought the books and kept buying books at that store — discovering that many New Age books mention aliens.

Sirians Created the Major Races Who Then Created Minor Races
Two of Ruth Montgomery's books had mentioned an alien race called the Arcturians who were also mentioned by a writer named Dr. Norma Milanovich. A writer named Barbara Marciniak and Barbara Hand Clow described the Pleiadians. A writer named Drunvalo Melchizedek mentioned the Sirians and said that they were the most advanced race. Much later, I learned that the Arcturians are one of 156 Minor Races. The Arkaron race is another example. The Pleiadians are a Major race.

One day when I was shopping in the New Age store in Greenwich Village, the owner said she wanted me to meet another customer who was also a writer. They arranged for me to meet a woman named Hannah Beaconsfield for lunch and she told me she was a Pleiadian Walk-in. Two of Ruth Montgomery's books mentioned Walk-ins and I knew what she was referring to. Hannah had written two books about her experience to help other Walk-ins. In October 2001, Hannah invited me to the New York Academy of Medicine to see a live presentation by Dr. Steven Greer. Greer had been an emergency medicine doctor in Virginia and he had created The Disclosure Project to petition Congress to organize a formal hearing for 600 “witnesses” who had had experiences with UFOs. Many of the witnesses were former military, air traffic controllers and pilots who decided to come forward and tell their stories. A witness named Dr. Carol Rosin was the first woman corporate manager of Fairchild Industries and was spokesperson for Wernher Von Braun in the last years of his life. Wernher worked in Huntsville, Alabama, the location of today's U.S. Space and Rocket Center. In 1941, when Hitler's invasion of Russia failed, Bill Donovan, head of the OSS, and Allen Dulles, OSS head of intelligence operations in Europe, began making plans to move 1,600 scientists, engineers, and technicians (such as Wernher von Braun and his V-2 rocket team) for job placement in the United States.

Carl Wolfe's Testimony About a Base on the Other Side of the Moon

Another Greer witness named Carl Wolfe was specialized in photography equipment. While repairing photography equipment for the National Security Agency (NSA), he was alone with a man who showed him photographs of a base on the other side of the Moon (our Moon moves around the Earth, but it does not rotate on an axis). Congress never organized a hearing. Greer organized his own event at the National Press Club. The two witnesses I've mentioned are in a film of witness testimonies recorded at that event. The event that Hannah and I attended was held in a large theater that looked like it held about 300 people. Dr. Greer did not try to convince the audience about the existence of UFOs. He spoke about Black Ops projects and technology that was taken from downed space crafts. A few examples (that I can remember) are night vision glasses and computer chips. He also described what he called “free energy” that is obtained...
The Hudson River Valley is/was a UFO hotspot.

The film Communion was released in 1989 starring Christopher Walken and Frances Sternhagen.

Ufologists Dr. J. Allen Hynek, Philip J. Imbrogno, and Bob Pratt wrote Night Siege: The Hudson Valley UFO Sightings that was published in 1998.

During a phone conversation with Harold Egeln who ran the S.P.A.C.E. UFO group, he told me that people who study UFOs often discover light bulbs blow out when they walk into a room. He said Whitley Strieber noticed street lights would go out during walks in Greenwich Village.

from the ambient environment—and does not pollute. In the lobby after the presentation, Hannah introduced me to 5 or 6 of her friends who asked me if I would like to help them form a New York Chapter of The Disclosure Project. I told them I would love to!

The Disclosure Project Chapter in New York

Our newly formed chapter began having meetings once-a-month, I built a Web site for the group and kept it updated for 15 years (even though I had moved to Wisconsin and then Florida). The meetings were very compelling. We networked with people from 3 other UFO groups in the New York area. The Hudson River Valley is one of several UFO hotspots in the United States. Other hotspots include Sedona, Arizona and Crestone, Colorado

- Budd Hopkins's Intruders Foundation
  Budd was a painter and his UFO group had monthly meetings at the Edgar Cayce A.R.E. Center in Manhattan on West 27th Street.

- Harold Egeln's S.P.A.C.E. Group in Brooklyn
  Harold's group was originally formed by Whitley Strieber who had an apartment in Greenwich Village.

- Pine Bush Town Hall Group
  Pine Bush, New York is a town in Upstate New York where Whitley Strieber had a cabin described in his book, Communion and film with the same name. Monthly meetings were organized by a marine biologist for townspeople who experienced UFO sightings. During the meeting that I attended, I experienced a weird energy change in my peripheral vision. When I talked to the marine biologist about my vision, he said thousands of people had attended their meetings over the years and there were several reports of strange energy in the room.

- Long Island Group
  We heard about this group, but did not meet the members because the group disbanded after the TWA Flight 800 crash into the Atlantic Ocean on July 17, 1996. Members of the Pine Bush Group said a photographer in the Long Island group had photographed the crash and was later found dead.

Greer's Life Was Threatened

During one of our lunch meetings, Hannah Beaconsfield explained that Steven Greer's life had been threatened by the Galactic Federation—a group he had been promoting. Shari Adamiak, his assistant, was also threatened. They were told that they could be targeted and given cancer. Shari died of cancer. Steven Greer had cancer, but he recovered. Years later, I found a scientific study that says attractiveness to mosquitoes is genetically determined. The study was done with twins (“Heritability of Attractiveness to Mosquitoes,” G. Mandela Fernández-Grandon, et al., PLOS ONE, April 22, 2015). I found 15 scientific studies that link cancer to a worm called Dirofilaria (commonly called heartworm). During the worm’s life cycle, mosquitoes can inject a parasite egg through the skin. Dirofilaria is the scientific name for a heartworm infection that can infect dogs, cats and humans. The CDC (Centers for Disease Control) is aware that Dirofilaria can infect humans. I found a 2006 study written by a group of scientists in Spain. At they beginning of their paper, they thank a CDC staff member (Patrick Lammie) who provided 80 blood samples from patients who were infected with Dirofilariasis.

There are hundreds of scientific studies in the National Library of Medicine that link parasitic worms to cancer. The titles of the studies often say the parasite infection is mimicking a malignancy. The authors of the studies are usually not in clinical practice and chemotherapy drugs are extremely profitable (more than $120,000 per patient per year). Tumors should first be treated with a strong antiparasite remedy. Lugol’s Iodine Solution has been known to reduce breast lumps. Dr. David Derry and Dr. David Brownstein have both written books about Iodine:

Breast Cancer and Iodine: How to Prevent and How to Survive Breast Cancer by Dr. David Derry

Iodine: Why You Need It, Why You Can't Live Without It by Dr. David Brownstein

Dr. David Derry got in trouble for his “How to Prevent” book. I write books for alternative medical doctors. A client of mine in St. Louis says it is “taboo” to use the words “cure” or “prevent” in modern medicine. Mainstream medicine wants to “manage” illness.

When I search for parasitic worms associated with breast cancer, several studies turned up describing three different types of parasitic worms:

Cysticercosis of the breast

Cysticercosis is the scientific name for an infection caused by a tapeworm.
In 2009, I concluded that there is an extermination agenda. Parasites that cause diseases are an example. I have found evidence that they are genetically engineered.

At a TED Conference in 2007, naturalist Edward Osborne Wilson was given an award for his contributions to the planet. As he accepted his award, Wilson talked about disease-causing parasites: 60,000 species are known, but more than 1.5 million have been estimated to exist.

Wilson:

Consider the nematode roundworms, the most abundant of all animals. Four out of five animals on Earth are nematode worms. If all solid matter on Earth were to be eliminated except the nematodes, you could still see the ghostly outline of most of it in nematode worms.

Dirofilariasis of the breast

Dirofilaria is the scientific name for heartworm that is in humans.

Breast schistosomiasis

Shistosoma is the name of a trematode, or flatworm.

All of the following studies are from the National Library of Medicine’s PubMed database listed in date order:

“Breast infection due to Dirofilaria repens: report of two new Italian cases and revision of the literature,” Parassitologia. 1998 Sep;40(3):269-73, Pampiglione S1, Di Palma S, Bono A, Bartoli C, Pilotti S.

Scientists say a genetically engineered H5N1 virus was responsible for the Spanish flu in 1918. The flu, also called the 1918 flu pandemic, infected five hundred million, or one fifth of the world's population and killed fifty to one hundred million people.

Citations for studies:

“Intramuscular Dirofilaria Mimicking an Orbital Metastasis in a Patient with Breast Cancer,” Case Rep Radiol. 2012; 2012: 103154, Published online 2012 Sep 13, Brett M. Henderson, 1 Christopher H. Hunt, 2,* Laurence J. Eckel, 2 Kara M. Schwartz, 2 Felix E. Diehn, 2 Bobbi S. Pritt, 3 David J. Schembri Wismayer, 3 and James A. Garrity 4

“Recurrent subcutaneous human Dirofilaria due to Dirofilaria repens after surgical removal of the worm and anthelmintic treatment,” Parasit Vectors. 2014; 7(Suppl 1): P3, Published online 2014 Apr 1, M Lupše, corresponding author I V Mircean, 2 A Cavasi, and AD Mihalce

Alien Space Ships Disappear Into Mountains in Crestone, Colorado

Steven Greer used to talk about space ships that disappeared into the mountains in Crestone, Colorado. When I first heard this, I wondered why space ships bothered to travel in 3D. I thought—if the ships could access another dimension, they would be totally undetected. In Wisconsin, and in Florida, I occasionally see what appear to be stationary shiny objects in the sky that are too large to be stars, that move. For years, I wondered, “Why are they in 3D?”

One night, while watching an episode of Stargate SG-1 called “Ascension,” I realized there must be differences in the ships. The plot of the episode had nothing to do with ships. In the story, Major Samantha Carter meets an alien named Orlin who builds a mini stargate in her basement. When Orlin shows Samantha the stargate, it was during that scene that I realized artificial humans can pass through stargates, but anyone with God-created genetics
Archaeologists have found evidence of parasites in predynastic Egyptian mummies that are more than 5,200 years old.

Paleoparasitologists have identified parasites Ascaris lumbricoides Taenia and Filaria in ancient mummies.

Greek physician Galen (130 A.D. - 200 A.D.) was familiar with Ascaris lumbricoides, Taenia and Enterobius Vermicularis that is called Strongyloidea Stercoralis in the United States.

Zecharia Sitchin, The 12th Planet, 1977
Graham Hancock, The Message of the Sphinx, 1997

Robert Temple's book, The Sirius Mystery, 1987, is mentioned in Lynn Picknett and Clive Prince's book, The Stargate Conspiracy. Picknett and Prince say Temple was targeted by the CIA, FBI, MI5, KGB, and NASA due to content that described advanced astronomical data known by Africa's Dogon tribe whose oral history says that a race of aquatic space beings landed on Earth thousands of years ago.

A friend of Temple's had given him a copy of a book called, Conversations with Ogotemmeli, published in 1947 and written by French anthropologists Marcel Griaule and Germaine Dieterlen. Griaule and Dieterlen studied the Dogon from 1931 to 1956 and spent a month interviewing the tribe's oral historian [a Dogon named Ogotemmeli]. What intrigued Temple the most was the Dogon's advanced astronomical knowledge. The Dogon understand:

- The brightest star in the sky is Sirius [now called Sirius A by modern astronomers].
- Sirius has two companion stars -- Sirius B and Sirius C [modern astronomical names]. Sirius B was accidentally discovered in 1862 with a telescope and Sirius C still exists as a mathematical model.
- According to Temple, the Dogon consider Sirius B to be the most important star in the sky.
- Sirius A forms a center for the orbit of a tiny companion star [Sirius B]. The Dogon did not speak about Sirius C that has been discovered by modern astronomers.
When Sirius B is closest to Sirius, that star brightens and when it is farthest from Sirius, it gives off a twinkling effect that suggests several stars.

Sirius B's orbit cycle takes 50 years

Without instruments, and for thousands of years, the Dogon had knowledge of Sirius B, that was accidentally discovered by an American telescope maker and astronomer [Alvan Graham Clark] on January 31, 1862.

In addition to being targeted by the CIA, FBI, MI5, KGB, and NASA, Picknett and Prince also say that Temple was approached by Charles E. Webber, a 33rd degree Mason, about joining the Freemasons. Webber told Temple that he should join the Masons so that "they could discuss his book as equals without the risk of his revealing Masonic secrets to an outsider."

A Web site called "Freemason Watch" reproduced Robert Temple's End Note about Freemasons in a 1999 Random House edition of his book. The End Note is titled, "A Note About Freemasonry." When I found that Random House had re-published Temple's book in 1999, I wondered if the book was the same as the edition published in 1987. The Random House version was the only edition available on Amazon.com and I ordered the book to compare it to the original edition I found as a PDF file on the Web. I can't remember details, but I remember the book had changed.

One of the many reasons that Robert Temple may have been targeted by the CIA, FBI, MI5, KGB, and NASA was the Dogon description of “seven chiefs who nourished the world.” Aleister Crowley and other members of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn communicated with “Secret Chiefs” and the Astrum Argenteum logo is a seven-pointed star. Astrum Argenteum was an organization created by Crowley in 1907. It is thought that Astrum Argenteum is Latin for “Silver Star.”

Although the English meaning of Astrum Argenteum has been debated, a Web site called Academickids.com (that has a blank “About” page that may have been deleted) says Argentinium Astrum is Latin for "silver star" or Astron Argon which is Greek for "silver star." The name refers to a magical order created by Aleister Crowley after leaving the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn.
Robert Temple's Appendix II contains an English translation of the surviving fragments of lost Babylonian history written in Greek by a Babylonian priest named Berossus, an acquaintance of Aristotle's. Berossus describes a group of amphibious beings who founded their civilization and the main individual's name was Oannes. Oannes is one of many names that Enki uses (also known as Osiris and by many other names). Robert Temple connection between Enki and Oannes and has added six images of Enki/Oannes to his book [Plates 6, 7, 8, 9 and Figures 30 and 31].

Temple says that in later traditions than the ones that Berossus drew on, Oannes became the fish-god of the Philistines known as Dagon and familiar to many readers of the Bible. When he assumed his Dagon identity, Enki had become an agricultural deity.

According to Temple, Berossus' work was preserved by a historian named Apollodorus who said Berossus called the amphibians Annedoti and said they were "semi-daemons," not gods. Temple's concern over multiple names led him to search for the meaning of the word "Annedotus." He learned that it means, "repulsive one."

Temple says that although the Babylonians revered the amphibians, they referred to them as "disgusting, horrible and loathsome to look upon." This account, plus many articles on the Web that describe Enki as a hermaphrodite, made me wonder how Enki had children. He is said to have fathered 90 children. Thoth, son of Isis, is the most famous. Enki is the Biblical Abel, who was cloned after his brother Enlil (Biblical Cain) killed him. He is also Zeus, who is represented by a handsome statue in Rome's Piazza Navona. The cloning process, that alternately may be a download, may explain the change in Enki's reproduction organs and his appearance.

William Henry's Oracle of the Illuminati
William Henry's book, Oracle of the Illuminati, published in 2006, is about advanced technology in ancient civilizations. However, before he introduces the ancients, he starts his book with a subject that he's excited about: an American military project (the Pentagon) that "marries nanotechnology and DNA." Henry feels we are headed toward a nanotechnology future that will make "gods out of humans" (we are already in the nanotechnology future). Most Americans are probably not aware that the Pentagon has partnered with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology
(M.I.T.) to create an “Institute for Soldier Nanotechnologies.” The plan was to develop a battle uniform or “miracle garment” made with nano material. Henry says the super-soldier will be linked to “eyes in the sky” and directly wired to the Net.

Right before he takes the reader on a roller-coaster exploration of advanced (alien) technology in ancient civilizations, he also mentions a U.S. National Science Foundation and Commerce Department report written in 2002 titled “Converging Technologies for Improving Human Performance.” Henry says one of the enhancements promoted in the report is a:

“hive mind”

I searched for a copy of the report to see what the authors have to say about a “hive mind.” A site called “World Technologies and Services” provides a 468 page PDF download (6 Mb). The document is what I would consider a white paper. White papers are technical documents, or authoritative reports that provide information. If you download the report, go to page 183 that covers not only “Hive Mind,” but also “Downloading Yourself into New Hardware.”

Sarcophagus in the Film Stargate and TV Series Stargate SG-1

Roland Emmerich’s 1994 film Stargate has a cast that includes an alien named Ra who has downloaded himself into a young human male. A popular television series followed in 1997 called Stargate SG-1 In the film and television stories, a sarcophagus is used to regenerate the human body although the word “download” is never used. In the television series, a race called the Tok’ra don’t believe in using the sarcophagus because it causes a person to “lose their heart.”

In a Stargate SG-1 episode called “Need” the regenerative energy of the sarcophagus is shown to be addictive as explained by a synopsis on the Internet Movie Database Web site (IMDb):

While walking through a forest on a planet, Jackson saves the life of a beautiful princess who is about to kill herself. SG1 is taken prisoner, but Daniel is freed by the ruler when he finds out that he saved his daughter. The rest of SG1 is sent to work in the mines for the rest of their lives. Jackson falls in love with the princess, but also becomes intoxicated by frequent use of a Sarcophagus. Will he come to his senses before the rest of SG1 are worked to death?

The American flag has 7 red stripes and the stars are pentacles.

Several New Age writers refer to Platonic Solids but do not explain the significance of these three dimensional polyhedrons. Polyhedras are solids in three dimensions with flat polygonal faces:

- Tetrahedron
- Cube
- Octahedron
- Dodecahedron
- Icosahedron

While looking at the Wikipedia page for Dodecahedron, that is mentioned frequently in William Henry's Oracle of the Illuminati, I noticed a pentacle in a two dimensional cross section.

Chapter 4, that covers artificial life, explains that artificial life is mathematical.
Is Downloading Real?

Is downloading real? Are there people living among us who download themselves into new hardware? If you have ever seen Alfred Hitchcock's Rear Window, you may remember the cast actor Jimmy Stewart wore. A couple of years ago, I lived with family members in a condominium inside a large development owned by Berkshire Hathaway. The property had 20 two-story buildings and we lived in Building #1. Each building had a laundry room located at the end of the building. We had a washer and dryer, but I had to use the building laundry room when we had trouble with our dryer. One morning, as I was leaving the laundry room dragging a small cart, I saw a cab drop off a man with crutches wearing what I call a Jimmy Stewart cast. He was someone I used to see walk past the front of our building, but I did not know his name. Apartment entrances were inside and I saw him disappear into the building.

Our property was a gated community and the guards were not permitted to give out names, or apartment numbers of any of the residents. A cab meant he probably did not have a friend or relative who could drop him at home. I wanted to leave a note on his door explaining that we were a family of four women and three drivers in case he had an errand. I took my note with me and knocked on four apartment doors on the first floor and four on the second floor. On the second floor, there was a very nice couple, Maurizio and Bernarda, who said their neighbor, who lived beneath them, had a cast on his leg and his name was Michael. Maurizio and Bernarda had said they did not really know Michael.

The next day, I thought of inviting Maurizio, Bernarda, Michael, one of my sister's and another friend to the property's Rec Center to get acquainted on the following Friday evening. Everyone who I invited said they could come to the small get-together. The next day, I saw Michael walking, as I had seen him before his accident, without his cast.

Maurizio and Bernarda met me, my sister and our other friend at the Rec Center, but Michael did not attend. Maurizio had noticed Michael was suddenly walking around without a cast and we talked about how it seemed impossible. I could tell that Maurizio wondered if I had a personal interest in Michael. We live in a society in which an offer of help to the opposite gender is interpreted as a personal interest. My plan for the get-together was simply to help Maurizio and Bernarda get to know Michael and to help someone who was obviously stressed.

GMO, that is an abbreviation for “genetically modified organism” used to be a secret. There have been court cases fought over labeling and suddenly, “no GMO” is mentioned in TV commercials. I believe this is because science has moved past “modification.” We now have synthetic biology and genome compilers.
I lived in Wisconsin for 10 years where the people are friendlier than people who live in Florida. I watched a film recently about a Norwegian town in Wisconsin called Our Vines Have Tender Grapes with Edward G. Robinson, Margaret O'Brien and Agnes Moorehead. When actor Morris Carnovsky loses his new, uninsured barn and livestock when lightning causes a fire, the entire town responds by giving him animals and supplies. The film was released in 1945.

If Downloading is Real, Can You “Lose Your Heart?”

If downloading is real, can you “Lose Your Heart?” I dowse “Yes” (when you dowse, a clockwise spin of a pendulum is “Yes” and counterclockwise is “No”). I also dowse numbers that can be accomplished by counting rotations. When I dowse the question, “How many downloads does it take to lose your heart?” The number 12 is returned.

Can Downloaded Humans Make Connections With Other Humans?

Remember the Star Trek: The Next Generation episode called “In Theory?” The episode explores the subject of a romantic relationship between a human and an android—Commander Data and a crew member named Jenna. Jenna makes the first move by kissing Data on the cheek and then the lips while they are working together. Data asks Guinan and Deanna Troi for advice and they both encourage him. He then decides to pursue a relationship with Jenna that does not work. Jenna soon figures out that Data is incapable of feeling any emotion and breaks off the relationship. Can an artificial human feel emotions? I dowse “No.”

Jesuit Who Wrote a Book Called Turn Left at Orion

There is so much that is hidden and we only know fragments of what is happening around us on our planet. I came across a news story about a Jesuit named Brother Guy Consolmagno who is the director of the Vatican's Observatory in Arizona. He is the author of a book called Turn Left at Orion. When you Google the question “What is left of Orion?” several links to pages about Sirius are returned. There is a PDF of Brother Guy's book online. It's a text book in its 4th edition. Nearly every star in the book is compared to Sirius.

The Observatory's headquarters is in Italy at Castel Gandolfo, but the Vatican Advanced Technology Telescope, or VATT is at Mount Graham.
My mother was born in 1932. I believe members of my family are Sirian Muggles.

Harry Potter fans will recall that a Muggle is someone who is asleep. They do not know wizards exist. I think the word is used to refer to people who do not know aliens exist. I also believe the category now includes anyone who has been on Earth more than 5 years. The geocaching game, played with a GPS receiver, is a big clue that I am correct about the use of the word Muggle. There are geocaching game posters on the Web that say, “Don't let Muggles spoil your fun,” or, “Don't let the Muggles get you down.” Cabela’s, a retailer that sells GPS receivers, has a Geocaching page that says, “keep the location on the down low so non-geocachers (often called muggles) don't mess with the caches and ruin the fun for others.”

My mother's father had a career in Republican politics and he worked closely with Nelson Rockefeller. She told me her parents had five women friends in Order of the Evening Star (OES) which is the female Freemason organization.

near Safford, Arizona. Castel Gandolfo is the Pope's summer residence. The Vatican moved two telescopes to Castel Gandolfo from Rome in the 1930s. Today, the Vatican Observatory Research Group (VORG), is at the Steward Observatory at the University of Arizona in Tucson.

Brother Guy's second book is called Would You Baptize an Extraterrestrial? A transhumanist and WebTV producer named Dr. Thomas Horn reviewed Consolmagno's second book in an article that has an illustration of an ET dressed as Jesus. Transhumanism (abbreviated as H+ or h+) refers to human beings that are transformed and enhanced with technology. A transhumanist organization called Humanity+ published five issues of a magazine called H+ from 2008 to 2009. The editor's name was R.U. Sirius. His real name is Ken Goffman and he has an extensive bio. He's written for WIRED, Rolling Stone, Time, and Esquire. In the 1990s, he recruited Timothy Leary to be a contributing editor for a magazine called Mondo 2000 that he co-founded.

Sirian Migration to Earth Over the Last 30 Years

I have not stopped researching the subject of UFOs. It turns out—they look exactly like us and they live here. There has been a huge migration to Earth over the last 30 years. As I mentioned, writer Drunvalo Melchizedek explains that the Sirians are the most advanced race. In other work, I discovered that the Sirians created the other races (as slaves).
A National Geographic Society explorer and underwater archaeologist named Robert Ballard found evidence of the flood in the now salty Black Sea. He used a robotic submersible and found evidence of an ancient shoreline and man-made structures off the coast of Turkey. Ballard has an impressive background including senior scientist at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution. He has also written several books.

Akrotiri (and several other ancient Mediterranean cities) had advanced plumbing. Akrotiri had an advanced sewerage system throughout the entire town even connecting bathrooms on second floors. Akrotiri, located on the Greek Island of Santorini, was destroyed by a volcanic eruption. The lava and ash helped preserve the buildings, streets, furniture and pottery. It’s considered one of the best preserved sites on Earth. Mysteriously, no bodies and no valuables have been found. Volcanic eruptions occur in places where tectonic plates of the Earth meet. The African and Eurasian plates meet near Santorini. A professor of geosciences who wrote “How to Trigger a Volcanic Eruption on Purpose,” for WIRED magazine, says the best location is Santorini.
Earth's Hidden Past

Earth Energy and the Mezuzah

In Wisconsin (where I lived from 2003 to 2012), I had a LOT of trouble with the energy in one of my apartments and I learned to dowse. I was writing a book for a doctor at the time and he gave me Käthe Bachler's book called Discoveries of a Dowser. Kathe was an Austrian school teacher who lived in Salzburg. She had a young son with asthma and noticed he improved when she moved his bed. A group of dowsers in Salzburg taught her to use “L Rods” to identify geopathic energy veins. She was successful and her Austrian school district gave her a grant to study dowsing. She dowsed more than 4,000 homes discovering geopathic energy veins running through mostly bedrooms of people with health problems.

Käthe Bachler's book is quite amazing. She explains that the negative energy veins are south polarized. Ant hills can be found on south pole energy veins. Cats are attracted to south pole energy and dogs are not. The doctor I was working for likes to go to the largest alternative medicine conference in the world in Baden Baden. He said European alternative doctors are 20 years ahead of American alternative doctors. When they meet new patients, they like to investigate whether the patient is sleeping on a geopathic energy vein.

I found a YouTube video that provides steps on how to make L-Rods from wire coat hangers and plastic straws. When I dowsed my small studio apartment in Madison, Wisconsin, I was startled to find 30 “hotspots” of negative energy. I was developing eye pain at night that went away when I pushed my bed to a location where there were no hotspots. A dowser from Minnesota helped me install copper wire around the perimeter of my apartment that also helped. Strangely, or not, I noticed several ant hills outside my building directly in front of my apartment.

From then on, I searched for whatever I could find about dowsing and energy-related information. A farmer friend of mine who lived 40 miles from Madison invited me to meet a Master Dowser from Chicago and a mutual friend from Illinois who spent an afternoon dowsing at my friend's farm near Dodgeville, Wisconsin. Later, I found Dr. Patrick MacManaway's Dowsing For Health, a coffee table book containing steps for learning to dowse.

It was around this time that I thought about the Mazuzahs on the door frames of my friends' apartments in New York. I researched the subject and discovered that a Mezuzah is a rectangular holder for parchment that contains phrases from Deuteronomy and Ecclesiastes that say to use God's name as a shield against evil. Orthodox Jews also use a Tefillin that is worn on the arm or head containing a piece of parchment with the same phrases.
One of the books I had purchased at Barnes and Noble was called The Stargate Conspiracy by Lynn Picknett and Clive Prince. I was slow getting started with the book because I flipped through the pages and noticed negative information about Madame Blavatsky who had founded the Theosophical Movement. I had studied Theosophy in New York in the early 1980s at the Lodge on East 72nd Street. The people who attended Theosophical lectures were so nice, I did not want to discover any dark secrets. I was drawn to Theosophy because it was described as a comparative study of all religions. Later, I realized that the only religion the Theosophists ever mentioned was Hinduism.

Picknett/Prince Describe "High Strangeness" on the Giza Plateau

The Picknett/Prince authors explained that they started out to write a book about Isis and they uncovered what they called “high strangeness” on the Giza plateau. Their project turned into an exposé when they uncovered the work of an American Army physician and parapsychologist named Andrija Puharich who also worked for the CIA. Puharich experimented with hypnosis, and because he was obsessed with the possibility of psychic communication with non-human intelligences, he stumbled on a channeled message from a group of ETs who called themselves the ‘Nine.’ Originally calling themselves ‘Nine Principles,’ the ETs later explained that they were a ‘Council’ made up of the nine ancient gods of the Egyptian Ennead. Picknett and Prince report that communication with the Egyptian ET Council first occurred on New Year's Eve in 1952 through an Indian mystic named Dr. D.G. Vinod who Puharich hired.

Nine "gods" Worshipped at the Ancient Egyptian City of Heliopolis

Picknett and Prince do not mention the the names of the ETs who called themselves the "Nine." It took me a while to create a list and I discovered that several have many names:

- Atum (father, aka Amun, Amen, Ra or El)
- Shu (son, air god, aka Enoch, great, great-grandfather of Noah)
- Tefnut (daughter, water goddess)
- Geb (grandson, aka Methuselah)
- Nut (granddaughter)
Osiris (great grandson, aka Enki, Ea, Zeus, Poseidon, Biblical Abel, Odin & many other names)

Isis (great granddaughter, aka Sekhmet, Ninhursag & others)

Set (great grandson, aka Seth, Enlil, and the Biblical Cain)

Nephthys (great granddaughter)

Amun Ra, One of the Eight and One of the Nine

Ra is also known as Atum, Amun, Amen, or El. Amun means “Hidden One.” Ra was part of ancient Egypt’s Ogdoad, or system of eight deities and he is also part of the Nine, or Ennead.

Several years after I read The Stargate Conspiracy, I found an image of a Freemason publication called The Kneph that helped me to understand Egypt's Ogdoad or, “Eight.” The Kneph was published by the Ancient and Primitive Rite of Masonry in England from 1881 to 1900. The masthead contained artwork of a winged egg called an "Amun." In Ancient Egyptian religious art, Kneph refers to a motif, variously a winged egg, or an egg surrounded by one or more serpents. An 18th century artist named Jacob Bryant, is known for his "Orphic Egg, or world egg," that shows a snake wrapped around an egg (Google Jacob Bryant, Orphic Egg, or world egg photo to see his drawing). The drawing is related to an Amun creation myth that originated in Hermopolis that means “the city of Hermes” in Greek. Hermopolis was a major center of the god Thoth who was the great, great grandson of Amun. Like the members of the Ennead, Thoth had several names. He was Thoth in Egypt, Hermes in Greece, Mercury in Rome and Quetzalcoatl in Middle America.

According to the Amun creation myth, eight gods interacted causing an explosion and the burst of energy has been thought to be the Big Bang (I believe this is an artificial explosion that is never explained). In 1927, a Belgian Roman Catholic priest, astronomer and professor of physics, made a connection between the Cosmic Egg and what is now called the Big Bang Theory. Lemaître himself described his theory as “the Cosmic Egg exploding at the moment of the creation.”

Winged Egg or Cosmic Egg

According to the Zoroastrians, Ahura Mazda (also known as Osiris, Enki, Ea, Zeus and the Biblical Abel) created a floating, egg-shaped universe. The Cosmic Egg is present in many creations myths. It occurs as a motif... among the Celts, Greeks, Egyptians, Phoenicians, Canaanites, Tibetans, Hindus, Vietnamese and Chinese.

Zoroaster, or Zarathustra, was a Persian philosopher and a prophet of Enki’s who he called Ahura Mazda. Zoroaster is considered to be the first humanist. The American Humanist Association has a logo that says, “Good Without a God.” The home page says they advocate progressive values and equality for humanists, atheists and freethinkers.

According to Wikipedia, ‘scholars in the humanities are humanity scholars or humanists. A lot of famous scientists were/are humanists: Albert Einstein, Isaac Asimov, Niels Bohr, and Paul Dirac.

Enki's and Thoth's Popularity Around the World

Enki and Thoth seem to be extremely popular around the world. A review of the evidence requires their alternate names that I have included in the following list:

- Piazza Navona (Enki)
  Statues of Zeus and Poseidon in this famous square in Rome are Enki.

- Comcast Building Entrance at Rockefeller Center (Enki)
  This Art Deco frieze is called the Demiurge. It is a bearded man holding a huge compass and the figure is Enki. Demiurge means craftsman or artisan.

- Runes (Enki)
  Enki was the Norse god Odin and is associated with the Runic alphabet of the Germanic people. The alphabet was used before the introduction of Latin script. Stones, carved with Rune symbols were also used in divination, or fortune telling. In his book, The Rise of the Fourth Reich, author Jim Marrs describes Hitler's interest in mysticism. From the 1920s to 1945, Nazis used Rune symbols on uniforms and flags. Germany’s Wewelsburg Castle in Paderborn, built in 1609, has three walls that form a triangle (Sirius forms an equilateral triangle with stars Betelgeuse and Procyon). The castle is about 165 miles north of Frankfurt and the building has become a museum. 1934, Himmler took over Wewelsburg Castle and built a headquarters for an SS Order. The SS Generals Hall in the North Tower has a Black Sun symbol, or Sun Wheel, in the floor. In German, Black Sun is Schwarze Sonne. The spokes of the wheel contain a sowelo rune symbol that forms the logo of the SS.
Santa Claus (Enki)
Santa Claus is the Norse god Odin which is one of Enki's alternate names. Anthony Hopkins was Odin in the movie Thor. “Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus” is a famous editorial written in 1897 by Francis Pharcellus Church, an editor of a New York City newspaper called The Sun in response to a letter from 8 year-old Virginia O'Hanlon. Church's editorial is the most reprinted newspaper editorial in the English language. Every year, the editorial is read at Columbia University Yule Log ceremony (Columbia University's mascot is a Lion that is usually printed in blue). Sirians were once blue-skinned and they consider themselves to be the “Lion people”). In 2003, Lord & Taylor depicted “Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus” in a mechanical window display.

Satan (Enki)
Enki's nickname is Satan. Enki and his brother Enlil (Biblical Abel and Cain) both used the nicknames Satan and Lucifer. The Teens4Satan Group at Yahoo has 23,326 members.

Founder, Brotherhood of the Snake (Enki)
In his book, The Gods of Eden, author William Bramley says Enki (also known as Prince Ea) founded the Brotherhood of the Snake (that continues today—presumably as the Freemasons).

Greek god Asclepius (Enki and Thoth)
Biographer Soranus of Ephesus, writing in the 2nd century, said that Hippocrates was born on the Greek island of Kos and that his father and grandfather were both physicians. According to Soranus, Hippocrates trained at the Asclepieion of Kos named after the Greek god Asclepius who was the son of Apollo (one of Enki's names).

Phoenix of Lagash (Thoth)
A double-headed phoenix is called the “Phoenix of Lagash” and it is from a carving on an Egyptian cylinder seal. Lagash is an ancient city in Mesopotamia, which is in present day Iraq—located near the junction of the Euphrates and Tigris rivers. A cylinder seal is an engraved cylinder made of stone that is used to roll into clay and leave an impression. In the cylinder seal called “Phoenix of Lagash,” Thoth is Ningishzida and he has two serpent-headed dragons erupting from his shoulders that led to the double-headed Phoenix design. This design was used in Coats of Arms all over Europe.
Roman Empire (Thoth)
Julius Caesar wrote that Mercury was the most popular god in Britain and Gaul, and regarded as the inventor of all of the arts (Gaul included present day France, Luxembourg, Belgium, most of Switzerland, parts of Northern Italy, as well as the parts of the Netherlands and Germany).

Findhorn Garden, Scotland (Thoth)
Thoth, in his identity as Pan, managed nature spirits, devas and elementals in the Findhorn Garden that was part of an ecovillage founded by Eileen Caddy, Peter Caddy and Dorothy Maclean in 1972.

Merlin (Thoth)
Merlin of the Arthurian legend, is Thoth.

Place de la Concorde (Thoth on Enki's horse)
A statue of Mercury on Enki's winged horse named Pegasus is located in the Place de la Concorde in Paris.

Grand Central Station (Thoth)
A statue of Mercury designed by French sculptor Jules-Felix Coutan is 48 feet high and 60 feet wide. The statue was the largest in the world when it was unveiled in 1914.

The Apron (Thoth)
This booklet, written by Frank C. Higgins and published in 1914, contains an illustration of a pharaoh receiving a triangular Masonic Apron from Thoth shown with his Ibis head. The pharaoh is holding an Ankh Cross or "Key of Eternal Life" that Higgins explains is a grand Masonic emblem and symbol of the last grade obtained. To find the file, Google the apron frank c. higgins PDF.

Statue, Winged Mercury (Thoth)
National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C.
This bronze statue, is attributed to an anonymous artist who worked with Flemish-Italian sculptor Giovanni da Bologna (1529-1608). After Michelangelo, Giovanni da Bologna was considered the most important and original 16th-century sculptor. Actors William Holden and Judy Holiday walk past the statue in the 1950 film Born Yesterday.

Caduceus, Symbol, Medical Practice (Thoth)
The caduceus is the traditional symbol of Hermes and features two snakes winding around an often winged staff.

Exopaedia is an online encyclopedia about extraterrestrials. This searchable site (a Hyperbase) has a page devoted to “Blue Skinned Aliens” that includes the population in the Sirius system. http://www.exopaedia.org Hindu deities have blue skin. To see illustrations of Vishnu or Shiva, type their names into Google with the word photo.

In the 1990s, Disney produced an animated Aladdin that has a blue jinn. A blue jinn was even part of the I Dream of Jeannie story that appeared on TV in 1965. Barbara Eden played a 2,000 year-old genie. She was not blue, but in the original story, she was a human who was turned into a genie by a ‘blue Jinn’ when she refused to marry him.
Earth's Hidden Past

Megalithic stones around the world, such as those used in Dolmens, are an Earth mystery because of their size. Many people wonder if ancient aliens used sound, or magnetic energy to move the stones.

The Balmoral Hotel, Edinburgh, Scotland (Thoth)
The Balmoral Hotel room where J.K. Rowling finished Harry Potter contains a bust of Hermes with “JK Rowling finished writing Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows in this room (552) on 11th Jan 2007” in written in black marker.

The Great Sphinx on the Giza Plateau (Thoth)
According to Zecharia Sitchin, who translated The Lost Book of Enki, Thoth's face is on the Sphinx, Thoth is called Ningishzidda in the book. Enlil, Enki's brother says, “Let the gazing lion, precisely eastward facing, with Ningishzidda's image be!” The Sphinx faces East.

Central Park Obelisk, New York City (Thoth)
The obelisk in New York's Central Park is nicknamed Cleopatra's Needle and is located next to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The Obelisk was commissioned by Pharaoh Thutmose III for Heliopolis and was transferred to New York in 1880. If you look at the Wikipedia page for Thutmose III, it says:

Thutmose III, sometimes read as Thutmosis or Tuthmosis III, Thothmes in older history works, meaning “Thoth is born.”

There are bronze crabs at the base that the Romans used to stabilize the monument and the crab is a symbol with a connection to Sirius. Each sign of the zodiac is divided into 3 decans or divisions of 10 degrees each. Sirius is in a constellation called Canis Major, but it's also part of the zodiac's Cancer constellation’s second decan. It's zodiac position is 14°05’ Cancer.

A parade of 9,000 Freemasons marched up Fifth Avenue for the laying of the obelisk’s cornerstone. Thutmose III also founded the Rosicrucian Order.

Pyramids Built in the Americas (Thoth)
Thoth was Quetzalcoatl in Middle America where he built more pyramids than the rest of the world combined.
Mysteries in Turkey

In 2011, while visiting one of my favorite coffee shops in Wisconsin called The Sow's Ear in a small town called Verona, I noticed the June 2011 edition of National Geographic magazine on a coffee table next to my chair. The cover feature story was titled, “The Birth of Religion” written by Charles C. Mann, a journalist who specializes in scientific subjects. The article is about an archaeological site in southeast Turkey called Gobekli Tepe that is 2,490 feet above sea level.

Gobekli Tepe was first discovered by an archaeologist from the University of Chicago in 1963 who thought it was a Byzantine cemetery. More than thirty years later in 1994, a German archaeologist named Klaus Schmidt, from the German Archaeological Institute, re-examined the site and discovered it is 7,000 years older than Stonehenge and much more sophisticated. The site contains large circular-shaped building with pillars carved with relief images of animals. The pillars are 20 feet high and weigh about 10 tons each. The radiocarbon dates that have been published imply that the builders were hunter gatherers. Clearly, they were not. In his article, Mann wrote, “Discovering that hunter-gatherers had constructed Göbekli Tepe was like finding that someone had built a 747 in a basement with an X-Acto knife.” Schmidt excavated about one fiftieth of the site until 2014. Schmidt, born in 1953, died suddenly of a heart attack while swimming.

The Birth of Religion?
The National Geographic article does not explore the topic of religion. However, two years later, in 2013, six bloggers referred to Gobekli Tepe as a "Temple to the Dog Star" including Whitley Strieber's wife Anne who died of cancer. The Sirius system, is only 8.6 light-years from Earth. Sirius, that forms an equilateral triangle with stars Betelgeuse and Procyon, is nicknamed the Dog Star.

Carbon Steel Knife Found in Kaman-Kalehoyuk
In 2009, Hideo Akanuma, a Japanese archaeologist and metallurgist with Japan’s Iwate Prefectural Museum, announced that an iron knife found at Kaman-Kalehoyuk, is 4,000 years-old and composed of carbon steel. There's a rather obvious coverup because steel production starts with iron processing that requires a melting point of 1,535 degrees centigrade—far above the temperature of a normal fire, which is 1,000 to 1,100 degrees centigrade at most.
The National Geographic Channel, the Smithsonian Channel and the History Channel have episodes about the search for Atlantis. The episodes about Akrotiri on the Green Island of Santorini are interesting because of the advanced plumbing that was found in an archaeological site that is thousands of years old. Modern indoor plumbing did not exist until the early to mid-nineteenth century. A show I watched used a 3D animation to illustrate an advanced sewerage system throughout the entire town even connecting bathrooms on second floors. I wrote a book about 3D animation in the 1990s and knew the digital file might be on the Web. I found the animation of the sewerage system on the Getty Images site:

Akrotiri is an archaeological site known as the Greek Pompeii located south of modern Akrotiri on the Greek island of Santorini (also called Thera) in the Aegean Sea. Akrotiri was buried in a volcanic eruption, yet no bodies or precious items have been found, unlike Pompeii. The lava and ash helped preserve the buildings, streets, furniture and pottery. It's considered one of the best preserved sites on earth. Points about this mystery include:

- Akrotiri is tied to the Minoans who have been described as “very advanced.”
- Minoan pottery has been found at several archaeological sites in the Aegean and along coastal Syria and Egypt.
- Minos is a son of Zeus. Zeus is one of Enki's names.
- Mount Vesuvius destroyed Pompeii in 79 A.D. Akrotiri is much, much older.
- Archaeologists know people chose to leave the town before the big eruption happened.
- Sitchin’s book says the flood was real and that Noah’s real name was Ziusudra. He was a son of Enki’s. The flood killed the population at sea level, but there were survivors at high elevations.
A WIRED magazine article written by a professor of geosciences titled "How to Trigger a Volcanic Eruption on Purpose," says the best location is Santorini. The professor's name is Erik Klemetti and he teaches a Petrology and Volcanology class at Denison University in Ohio. Erik says you can get magma in a volcano to erupt explosively with the addition of outside water.

While I was doing a search in the National Library of Medicine's PubMed/Medline database, I came across an article about advanced plumbing in an archaeological site on Crete:

There are also articles on the Web about advanced plumbing found at an archaeological site called Mohenjo-Daro in Pakistan. The word pre-diluvian or antediluvian is used to describe the period before the Biblical Flood.

It appears that Earth was advanced before the Flood. I've dowsed the following six areas on the planet:

- Mohenjo Daro, Indus Valley
- Taj Mahal, Agra India
- Minoan
  - Great Pyramid at Giza
  - Stonehenge, England
  - Gobekli Tepe, Southeast Turkey
  - Akrotiri, Island of Santorini
- Aroi Sun Kingdom of the Pacific
  - Moai human gures, Easter Island, Polynesia
- Yax Mutal, northern Guatemala
  - Machu Picchu, Peru
  - Chichen Itza, Yucatan Peninsula, Mexico
- Han China
  - Great Wall of China
- Mississippi River Valley
  - Monks Platform Mound, Cahokia, Illinois

Earth's population that survived at high elevations had to start over.
Earth's Hidden Past

The “Jachin” and “Boaz” pillars can be seen in the High Priestess card in the Tarot deck.

Enoch Hid a Golden Triangle and Built Two Pillars Before the Flood

Enoch, the great, great grandfather of Noah and son of Amun's son Shu, hid a golden triangle before the Biblical Flood to preserve it. He also built two pillars called the Antediluvian Pillars, or Enoch's Pillars. The pillars were later called “Jachin” and “Boaz” and can usually be found in Masonic Temples.

The Book of Enoch is part of the Dead Sea Scrolls, that are referenced, but not approved in Judaism and Christianity. Enoch knew there would be a flood. Enoch 10:13 is probably the reason the Book of Enoch is not approved:

> Gabriel was told to ‘Go to the biters, to the reprobates, to the children of fornication, the offspring of the watchers, from among men; bring them forth and excite them against one another. Let them perish under mutual slaughter; for length of days shall not be theirs.’

There is a reference in The Lost Book of Enki about Marduk addressing a group called the Igigi giving them a choice to avoid the calamity by going to a way station on Mars or dispersing to Earth's distant mountainlands to survive the Deluge. The book's glossary describes Marduk as Enki’s first born son. In the book, the Igigi are 300 Anunnaki assigned to shuttlecraft and a station on Mars who abducted female Earthlings as wives.
In 2012, I accidentally discovered what I call a “Sirian left-hand pose” in pictures of famous people and a few in my family. I also found many famous people with a "right-hand" version. Major race members may have a pose that is similar to, but opposite, the Sirian left-hand pose.
In 2012, I came across a poster of Harry Potter actor Daniel Radcliffe holding his two hands together to form a triangle using his thumbs and forefingers. I had also seen the hand gesture in a New Age book called What Is Lightbody?: Archangel Ariel Channeled by Tashira Tachi-Ren. Another writer, named Robert Bruce, an Australian who wrote The Practical Psychic Self Defense Handbook, hints that angels are aliens in the first few pages of his book. The triangle hand gesture is also in a YouTube film produced by/for The Galactic Federation (a Sirian organization).

The Sirius star constellation is in the shape of an equilateral triangle (Google “Winter Triangle Photo” and you will see pictures). The Daniel Radcliffe poster was used in South America only (not the United States). Daniel's hand gesture prompted me to search for similar hand gestures among other famous people. I found several other celebrities making the triangle gesture (Denzel, Warren Buffet, Tom Cruise and Kobe Bryant).

I decided to continue my search and organize categories drawn from television and sports. I started with Science Fiction television, then Comedy, then Forbes lists of highest paid athletes in Football, Baseball, Basketball, Golf and Tennis. I thought it strange that many celebrities had portrait shots with their arms crossed. In articles about photography, photographers advise against this because it appears as though you are protecting yourself. As I searched, I found three famous people (Gates McFadden, Mel Brooks and Cheech Marin) with crossed arms positioned like pharaohs—across their chest. I realized that this must be a connection to ancient Egypt. Later, I found modern Egyptian travel sites that say the pharaohs were buried with their arms crossed over their chest in honor of Osiris.

When I had collected about 300 photos, I asked my mother to sit with me in front of my computer and look at the pictures. It was during this review that I accidentally discovered what I began to call the “Sirian cross arm pose.” When I brought up a photo of James Franco, I noticed he had the fingers of his left hand showing (wrapped around his right arm) and the fingers of his other hand were hidden. In versions of the pose, this is achieved by making a fist with the right hand or tucking the right hand in the crossed arms up to the wrist. Go to Wernher von Braun's Wikipedia page and look closely at his photo.

I don't think I would have noticed the details in the left-handed pose if I had not remembered seeing an article about James Franco that described...
In a scene in Rosemary's Baby, actress Mia Farrow is holding Eliphas Levi's Rituals and Dogma that is open to a page with his drawing of Baphomet. Google Roman Polanski's “Rosemary’s Baby” and the Dark Side of Hollywood and http://thegipster.blogspot.com for a blog that has a collection of photos from the film.

his performance art concerning Aleister Crowley in Los Angeles in 2012. Aleister Crowley was a British occultist who used the nickname “Baphomet.” I also remembered seeing a Wikipedia page titled “Left Hand Path and Right Hand Path” with Eliphas Levi's sketch of Baphomet in the corner. Baphomet is half man half goat. The Wikipedia page for Baphomet says he is a deity who the Knights Templar were falsely accused of worshipping.

The page about Left Hand Path and Right Hand Path is vague, but it had helped me to look closely at poses of famous people. I have since collected more than 900 including the world's richest and most powerful: Bill Gates, Prince Charles, Prince Philip, Sir Richard Branson, William Randolph Hearst, and Warren Buffet.

Major race members seemed to have the fingers of their right hand showing and the fingers of their left hand hidden. I found several famous Hollywood stars who I thought were Major Race members and later, I found a left-hand photo. It's possible that several decades ago, Sirians posed as Major Race members because there were more Major Race members among fans who were awake than Sirian (today there are more Sirians on Earth).

Aleister Crowley's Trip to Egypt in 1904 and the Stele of Revealing

In the Picknett/Prince book, the authors describe a trip that Aleister Crowley took to Egypt in 1904 with his wife Rose who was a medium. While in Cairo, Rose channeled “Nut” or “Nuit” who is one of the nine members of the Egyptian Ennead (Enoch's granddaughter). Nut instructed them to go to the Cairo Museum and look for Stele 666. A stele looks like a headstone and is made of wood or stone. If you Google “Stele 666” or “Stele of Revealing,” you will see the stele that Crowley and his wife found. Nut is in the illustration on the stele but her form is a little hard to see. Her body forms an upside down “U” around the edge and she has blue skin. Crowley was instructed to form the Thelema religion and the stele became the “Stele of Revealing” (it's on the Thelema Web site). Crowley declared the entire century from that point onward the “Aeon of Horus” (Age of). There are two who have used the name “Horus” who is depicted as a Falcon. Osiris (also known as “Enki” or “Ea”) and his son Thoth. Enki is Horus of Behdet (an ancient Egyptian city) and Thoth is Horus, son of Isis.
Searching for Sirian Left-Hand Poses in Photographs

To search for a Sirian Left-Hand pose in a photograph of a famous person, type their name into Google with the word photo. The following photos (with the left-hand pose) will be fairly easy to find:

Bill Gates
William Randolph Hearst
George Clooney
Anna Wintour

I created a page of links to photos that has not been updated in 4 years: http://articles.x10.mx/photos.html.

Each page contains 5 or 6 photos. When you click on a link, you may need to scroll through the photos on the page. I created these group pages because I wanted to create a white matted look around medium size photos with captions. Moving the photos out of the groups (when I found a new photo) would have required re-alphabetizing images that spread across several HTML pages.

Enhanced Humans Who Have Lived On Earth

Renaissance artists who could draw three dimensional polyhedra without a computer in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries were probably enhanced humans. Pictures of their drawings exist on the Web. If you do Google searches and look at their images, you will understand. Examples include:

Paolo Uccello (1397 - 1475) - born Paolo di Dono, was an Italian painter and a mathematician known for his visual perspective art. Paolo's stellated dodecahedron constructed as a marble mosaic shows a small stellated dodecahedron and a ring of hexagonal prisms on the oor of St. Mark's Basilica, Venice would be impossible to create without a computer, https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Paolo_Uccello#/media/File:Marble_oor_mosa_-ic_Basilica_of_St_Mark_Venice.jpg.

Johannes Kepler (1571 – 1630) was a German mathematician, astronomer, and astrologer who systematized and extended all that was known about polyhedra in his time by defining classes of polyhedra using mathematics. http://www.georgehart.com/virtual-polyhedra/kepler.html
Leonardo di ser Piero da Vinci, also known as Leonardo da Vinci (1452 – 1519), was an Italian polymath whose areas of interest included invention, painting, sculpting, architecture, science, music, mathematics, engineering, literature, anatomy, geology, astronomy, botany, writing, history, and cartography. His truncated icosahedron is found in his Ambrosiana manuscript, reprinted by Officina Bodoni, in 1956, and also by Silvana Editoriale, 1982, http://www.georgehart.com/virtual-polyhedra/leonardo.html

Luca Pacioli (1445 - 1514) - was an Italian mathematician, Franciscan friar, collaborator with Leonardo da Vinci. The first printed illustration of a rhombicuboctahedron, published in De divina proportione, 1509, is attributed to Luca Pacioli, http://www.georgehart.com/virtual-polyhedra/pacioli.html

Fra Giovanni da Verona (c. 1457 - 1525) was an engraver, miniaturist, sculptor and architect who he is remembered in particular for inlay artistry and perspective. http://www.georgehart.com/virtual-polyhedra/intarsia.html

Wenzel Jamnitzer (c. 1507/1508 – 1585) was a goldsmith, artist, and etching printmaker who worked in Nuremberg. Jamnitzer performed scientific studies to improve the technical knowledge of his guild and published Perspectiva Corporum Regularium (Perspective of regular solids) that has engravings of polyhedra, http://www.georgehart.com/virtual-polyhedra/jamnitzer.html

M. C. Escher (Maurits Cornelis Escher 1898-1972) was a Dutch graphic artist who made mathematically inspired woodcuts, lithographs, and mezzotints. His mathematical objects and operations include impossible objects, explorations of infinity, reflection, symmetry, perspective, truncated and stellated polyhedra, hyperbolic geometry, and tessellations. www.georgehart.com/virtual-polyhedra/escher.html

Modern Examples of Enhanced Humans

There are modern examples of humans who must be enhanced. The following two people are considered to be at the top of the relatively new field of synthetic biology described in the next chapter. In 2017, I came across an article about the top five people in the field of synthetic biology. I have lost the link, but I remembered George Church and Christopher Voigt:
Dowsing helps me to understand that Sirians have been creating artificial life for 30,000 years and artificial humans for 20,000 years.

George M. Church
George Church is a Robert Winthrop Professor of Genetics at Harvard Medical School and Professor of Health Sciences and Technology at Harvard and MIT. In broad strokes: as of May 2014, he is reported to have co-authored more than 330 publications, 60 patents, and a popular science book. He has also co-founded 22 companies and has led a genetics research team at Harvard that successfully copied woolly mammoth genes into the genome of an Asian elephant.

Christopher Voigt
Chris Voigt is the Daniel I.C. Wang Professor of Advanced Biotechnology in the Department of Biological Engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). As a specialist in the field of synthetic biology, he is the Co-Director of the Synthetic Biology Center at MIT and the Co-Founder of the MIT-Broad Foundry.

Chris Voigt has been a guest speaker at UW Madison's Department of Biochemistry. Google: YouTube Contemporary Biochemistry - Christopher Voigt and listen to the speaker who introduces Chris and explains how Chris needed three professors at CalTech as mentors when he worked on his PhD.
I did not look into the connection between alien races and religion until my aunt died a few years ago (my father's brother's wife). My uncle took her death very hard and began reading Billy Graham's books. I was suspicious of the Graham family because I had found Billy's Sirian left-hand photos taken with Lyndon Johnson and George H.W. Bush. Billy was an evangelical minister and several of his children have followed in his footsteps.

Anne Graham Lotz
My mother introduced my aunt and uncle when they were all very young.
When my aunt died, my mother and uncle talked about the events in their lives. When he found Billy Graham's books, he sent copies to my mother.
I don't think I would have done any research about the Graham family if my uncle had not sent Billy Graham's books to my mother.

Billy Graham's daughter is an evangelical minister who founded AnGel Ministries and has written 11 books. The letter “G” in AnGel is capitalized.
A symbol of an open compass surrounding a capital “G” is a famous Freemason symbol. If you look up the meaning, you'll find that the G refers to Geometry as a reminder that everything in existence is erected.

Anne's Story About the Lapis Lazuli Ring
Evangelical ministers do not have a connection with a parish. They make presentations at live events and on television. As I searched for information about Anne, I found an article published September 8, 2007 in the Houston Chronicle about an upcoming presentation at First Methodist Houston titled, “Anne Graham Lotz on recognizing God's wake-up calls.”

In the article, writer Barbara Karkabi relays Anne's story about a package wrapped in brown paper that she received from her mother. Inside, was a basket filled with tissue paper. After she threw the tissue paper away, she called her mother and learned that there was a lapis lazuli ring in the tissue paper. Anne found the tissue and explained that it had been given to her mother by an old friend at the British Museum. The stone was from the Susa palace where the biblical Queen Esther was said to have lived with the Persian King Ahasuerus.

When I Googled “Susa,” I found a Wikipedia page that describes the Palace at Susa built by Persian King Darius I. At the bottom of the page, in a section titled “Gallery,” there is a photo of a relief sculpture of Ninhursag with the spirit of the forests next to the seven-spiked cosmic tree of life (remember the seven secret chiefs?). Ninhursag is also Isis who is Enki's wife (and sister). I also discovered that Enki was nicknamed Lapis Lazuli—perhaps because of the temple he built for himself in Eridu, the oldest city in Sumer that was decorated with silver and lapis lazuli. Egyptians obtained lapis lazuli from Afghanistan. A Lapis trade route developed with ancient Egypt.

Persian King Ahasuerus

Persian King Ahasuerus who is mentioned in Barbara Karkabi's article is also Xerxes I. Xerxes is in the very bloody film 300 that was released in 2006. The sequel, 300: Rise of an Empire, another bloody film, was released in 2014. Actor Gerard Butler plays Greek King Leonidas, who leads 300 Spartans into battle against the Persian "god-King" Xerxes (the Spartans put up a huge fight, but they get clobbered).

The Bible's Book of Esther refers to Darius I's son Xerxes as Ahasuerus. The Book of Esther and Song of Songs are the only books in the Hebrew Bible that do not mention God.

Is it possible that Anne, who has been awarded six honorary doctorates for her extensive work in the area of Bible study, does not know about the relief image of Ninhursag at the Palace at Susa, or that the Book of Esther is one of two books in the Hebrew Bible that does not mention God? I don't think that this is possible.

Anne's book, that contains the story of her mother's lapis lazuli ring, is in her book titled, I Saw the Lord. In her book, Susa is called Shushan which is an alternate name for the ancient city.

Anne's Talks About Lazarus

Anne also likes to speak about Lazarus. Google Anne Graham Lotz and Lazarus and numerous links will be returned. In the Lazarus story, Mary and Martha sent word to Jesus that their brother Lazarus was sick. Jesus arrives late and brings Lazarus back to life 4 days after he was buried. Jesus rose from the dead after 3 days.

The Sirians cloned Enki when his brother Enlil killed him (the Biblical Abel and Cain story). In a frescoe found in the burial chamber of Ramesses I in the Valley of Kings, Luxor, Thebes, Egypt, Enki has a very large “X” on his robe. The Sirius XM Web site explains that “X” means “Beyond.” I think...
“X” refers to the cloned version. This could be related to why the pharaohs were buried with their arms crossed in an “X.” The “eternal life” promised by Jesus could refer to recycled clones instead of a soul. It may also be the reason that Halloween (or Day of the Dead) is celebrated the day before “All Souls Day.”

Ohbabynamed.com says the name Lazarus is Latinized from the Hebrew name El. Blueletterbible.org says El is the singular form of Elohim. Wiktionary says Elohim are the extraterrestrial creators of humans.

In 2010, The Sun newspaper reported that Sarah Palin reads sections from the Bible’s Book of Esther to her daughter Piper at bedtime. The story, published on May 3, 2010, is titled, “What Does Sarah Palin Read Her Daughter From the Bible?” Writer Benyamin Korn wrote:

When Governor Sarah Palin spoke to 16,000 Christian evangelical women in Louisville, Kentucky on April 16, guess which book she mentioned as the one she reads to her daughter at bedtime?

Try the biblical Book of Esther.

That’s right — Sarah Palin, mocked and pilloried by Jewish liberals as a danger to world Jewry because of her Christian beliefs, reads to her 8 year-old from a book that most Jews should probably spend a little more time with.
Rayelan Allan, Publisher of Rumormill News and host of a Rumormill-news.com Web radio show

Rayelan Allan, who hosts a Web radio show called Rumorville News recorded an interesting interview with Alfred Lambremont Webre in December 2010. She refers to Sirians who settled Earth and uses the expression “Sirian Lion Beings” in the title of the interview. Alfred Lambremont Webre is the founding father of Exopolitics, the science of relations between human society and other intelligent civilizations. http://radio.rumormillnews.com/podcast/2010/12/21/alfredwebre/. You can also Google: Alfred Webre talks about Sirian Lion Beings, Disclosure, UFO’s on Television, and MORE!

Remembering Rayelan Allen's Interview With Alfred Webre

Rayelan Allan's interview with Alfred Lambremont Webre is full of interesting details about the Knights Templar, the Sirians, and the Hapsburgs. The House of Habsburg was an Austrian line of a royal German family that dominated the dynasties of Europe from the 15th to the 20th century. The expression “blue bloods” may be related to the Exopaedia's page devoted to “Blue Skinned Aliens” that includes the population in the Sirius system (http://www.exopaedia.org).

I had completely forgotten about Rayelan's interview (probably due to a memory erase). About a week ago, the film Starman (1984) with Jeff Bridges and Karen Allen triggered a memory. Karen Allen was in Indiana Jones: Raiders of the Lost Ark as well as Indiana Jones and the Kingdom of the Crystal Skull. Actor Charles Martin Smith (who had a part in American Graffiti in 1973) plays a SETI (Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence) scientist named Mark Sherman.

The memory trigger was Charles Martin Smith's comment about golden discs sent into space aboard the Voyager Spacecraft in 1977 containing statements from Kurt Waldheim. Waldheim was Secretary General of the United Nations from 1972 to 1981. Rayelan Allan's husband was related to Kurt Waldheim and she talks about him in her Alfred Lambremont Webre interview.
Artificial Life

Artificial life and cloning is real. It is a blend of biology and computer technology that probably improves every year. Remember Dolly the Sheep? A company in DeForest, Wisconsin called ABS Global clones livestock. The company was founded in 1941 by John Rockefeller Prentice whose Wikipedia page says that he attended Yale University where he became a member of the Skull and Bones society.
My first introduction to artificial life, or synthetic life, was in Madison, Wisconsin in 2009. The University of Wisconsin, Madison is a public research university, which means it receives a substantial amount of financial support from the government. Madison is the capital of Wisconsin and the UW campus is about a mile from the capitol building on the shore of Lake Mendota. In 2007, construction began on two prominent new buildings that signs said would be genetics research facilities. In 2009, when the buildings were complete, I parked nearby and went inside to look around.

33rd Steenbock Symposium: Synthetic Genes to Synthetic Life

The genetics research buildings were so new, there were no people. As I walked through a large glass enclosure at the entrance to one of the buildings I saw a very large dark blue poster taped to the glass advertising the 33rd Steenbock Symposium called “Synthetic Genes to Synthetic Life” to be held July 30th to August 2nd 2009. The poster is still on the Web and can be found with a Google search on the title of the symposium, Steenbock and 2009. The artwork on the poster was startling to see. Adam's hand and a few inches of his arm above his wrist—from Michelangelo's frescoe (called Creation) on the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel—was touching a DNA helix.

In Michelangelo's frescoe, God is reaching out to touch Adam's hand. The hands are similar, but distinct. When I got home, I found the poster on the Web and compared it to the famous image. The hand on the poster was definitely Adam's hand. This is such a famous image, everyone who looked at the poster must have realized that God was Photoshoped out and replaced with Adam's hand (on the right side of the poster where God's image is located in the frescoe). In Photoshop, you can flip an image 180 degrees (you may need to do my suggested Google search to see the poster).

Harry Steenbock is famous on campus. The Agricultural School library is named after him. In 1923, he obtained a patent for artificial Vitamin D and the royalties went to the school.
Silica-Based Life Forms

In science fiction, there are several examples of silicon-based life forms starting with the Horta in the original Star Trek series. Next, there is the giant worm called an Exogorth in Star Wars and the Xenomorph in Alien. On July 12, 2005, The New York Times published an article about a real silica-based life form that lives deep in the ocean. The article, titled, "The Glass Menagerie (It's a Sponge), says the Venus flower basket, uses glass (silica), calcium carbonate and calcium phosphate to build a tubelike skeleton up to a foot long.

Doctor Client in St. Louis Who Found a Silica-Based Life Form

I think my most important doctor book project was a book I wrote for a St. Louis, Missouri-based medical doctor named Dr. Simon Yu. He had found the connection between parasites and disease while he was with the Army Reserves. I started the project in May of 2008 and flew to St. Louis to spend a week in his office. When he picked me up at my hotel the morning of the first day, he had a very serious expression on his face. On the way to his office, he told me he had found a silica-based life form. He could not give me details, but we talked about the fact that life on Earth is carbon-based and there was not supposed to be any silica-based life.

I lived in Madison, Wisconsin while I worked on Dr. Yu's book. I would send him sections and we would talk by phone about once-a-week. As we worked on his book, one of his patient stories was a military intelligence officer who served with Special Forces. We changed his name and called him Colonel H. in the book. In one of our weekly conversations, I asked Dr. Yu about silica-based life wondering if his discovery had anything to do with the soldier in Special Forces. When I brought up the subject, he had no recollection of our conversation in St. Louis! I believe his memory was erased. My memory has been erased. For example, I'm having difficulty putting these pages together! Memory erase may be one of the methods used to keep Earth's history a secret.
On May 20, 2010, the San Diego Union-Tribune published an article about J. Craig Venter's team in La Jolla, California that produced an artificial cell on a computer. Writer Gary Robbins interviewed Craig Venter and I found the last line in the article to be chilling. Gary wrote, quoting Craig Venter:

Software-dependent species (like the synthetic cell) also are constantly performing cell functions, but we were surprised by how quickly they evolved.

Foster Gamble's Thrive Video

In 2012, Foster Gamble, related to Procter and Gamble, introduced a video called Thrive that he sold for $20 with a license to make unlimited copies for distribution to friends, relatives and co-workers. I was a volunteer Weston A. Price Chapter Leader at the time and the State of Wisconsin was trying to drive our Amish farmer out of business. When I went to a dinner organized by his supporters in the Town of Loganville (population 400), a man named David greeted me at the door and handed me a copy of the video. Foster Gamble does not mention the Sirians in the film, but talks about an extraterrestrial race who can help humanity. There are images in the film that are not explained. Two that I can remember are shots of Abydos, Egypt, a famous ancient city in Egypt where the earliest pharaohs are buried, and a computer animation of a large translucent torus that Foster and his guests sit next to during discussions in the film.

Kimberly Carter Gamble, Foster's wife, was the producer of the Thrive video. A few months after the release, they made a few supplemental videos in a setting that looks like a living room, One was titled, “Foster and Kimberly Gamble Reflect on the Torus, Politics and You.” As I mentioned in Chapter 2, I wrote a book about 3D animation in the 1990s, and I knew that a torus is a 3D object that looks like a donut. The large torus from the Thrive video shows up in the supplemental video and Kimberly mentions her toroidal field that she thinks about during meditation. At the time, I can remember wondering what she was talking about!

Drunvalo Melchizedek's Flower of Life books (Volume 1 and 2) were among the New Age books that I read during the summer of 2001. Many years later, I found PDF versions on the Web that mention the torus. In Volume 1, on page 192 a section titled, “Progression of Life Forms through the Platonic Solids,” is a summary of several pages that describe the vesica piscis and mathematical cell division that leads to a torus at 512 cells.
In New Age Sacred Geometry, a vesica piscis is depicted with two overlapping circles of equal size intersecting at each circle’s midpoint. Google vesica piscis and the word photo and look for a line drawing. Then, Google Washington Monument aerial view and check out the new walkway that is shaped like a vesica piscis.

To summarize, we start out as a sphere, the ovum. We then move to a tetrahedron at four cells, then on to two interlocked tetrahedrons (a star tetrahedron or a cube) at eight cells. From two cubes at sixteen cells we turn back into a sphere beginning at 32 cells, and from the sphere we become a torus at 512 cells.

Torus and Toroid Used in Scientific Papers
After reading about J. Craig Venter's artificial cell, I started noticing scientific papers in the National Library of Medicine's PubMed/Medline database containing the words “torus” and “toroid.” The following paper is an example. Humans, horses, elephants and monkeys are mentioned in the study.

“Evolution of a Species-Specific Determinant within Human CRM1 that Regulates the Post-transcriptional Phases of HIV-1 Replication,” see: http://journals.plos.org/plospathogens/article?id=10.1371/journal.ppat.1002395

The text with the word toroid reads:

CRM1 is a toroid-shaped molecule that is remarkably well-conserved throughout the animal kingdom, with murine and human versions of CRM1 differing at only 21 of 1071 amino acids (98% identity).

Torus/Toroid Used in Scientific Papers About Harmful Life Forms
In a margin note in the Introduction, I mentioned that scientists have discovered the genetically engineered H5N1 virus was responsible for the Spanish flu in 1918. The flu, also called the 1918 flu pandemic, infected five hundred million, or one fifth of the world's population and killed fifty to one hundred million people. The words torus and toroid show up in scientific papers about other harmful life forms. Use the browser's search feature to locate torus or toroid.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Category</th>
<th>Life Form(s)</th>
<th>Citations and Links</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Climate change</td>
<td>Microcystis</td>
<td>The structural code of cyanobacterial genomes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC4132750/</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Schistosoma is related to a news story about George and Barbara Bush in January 2017. That month, several online news sites said George and Barbara were both hospitalized in Texas. He had pneumonia and she had bronchitis. A couple of the stories explained that George Bush already suffered from vascular parkinsonism that mimics Parkinson’s disease. Searches for scientific studies that connect parasites to vascular parkinsonism turned up the Schistosoma trematode.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Category</th>
<th>Life Form(s)</th>
<th>Citations and Links</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Climate change (continued)</td>
<td>Dinoflagellates</td>
<td>Evidence for a double-helically coiled toroidal chromonema in the dinoflagellate chromosome link</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nematode used in genetics research</td>
<td>Caenorhabditis elegans (C. elegans)</td>
<td>C. elegans patched-3 is an essential gene implicated in osmoregulation and requiring an intact permease transporter domain link</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Helminth(s) linked to human disease</td>
<td>Schistosoma spp.</td>
<td>The Redox Biology of Schistosome Parasites and Applications for Drug Development link</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Schistosomes and Filarial nematodes</td>
<td>“Helminth Infection and Type 1 Diabetes,” link</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
There is another famous person's case related to the Schistosoma parasite. Martine Rothblatt, the founder of SiriusXM Radio, has a daughter named Jenesis Rothblatt, who is now in her 30s. When she was 5, she was diagnosed with pulmonary hypertension and given three years to live. I learned about Jenesis' condition when I stumbled on a YouTube video of the Rothblatts' interview with Whoopi Goldberg. I found studies that connect pulmonary hypertension to Schistosoma.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Category</th>
<th>Life Form(s)</th>
<th>Citations and Links</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Coxsackie virus</td>
<td>Molecular architecture of the uncleaved HIV-1 envelope glycoprotein trimer http://www.pnas.org/content/110/30/12438.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Virus in patients with Vascular Parkinsonism</td>
<td>Borrelia burgdorferi (Bb)</td>
<td>“Homomultimerization of the Coxsackievirus 2B Protein in Living Cells Visualized by Fluorescence Resonance Energy Transfer Microscopy” https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC136438/</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bacterial spirochete associated with Lyme Disease</td>
<td></td>
<td>The unique paradigm of spirochete motility and chemotaxis, Annu Rev Microbio, Sept 2013</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Earth's Hidden Past

The Alzheimer's Association says Another American develops Alzheimer’s disease every 69 seconds.

In 2014, I wrote a book about Lithium for a Boston psychiatrist. We added a chapter about Alzheimer's because patients on long term Lithium do not get Alzheimer's.

In 2005, Drs. Osvaldo P. Almeida and Nicola T. Lautenschlager with the University of Western Australia’s School of Psychiatry and Clinical Neurosciences, reviewed the most frequent infectious causes of dementia that include Herpes virus, Toxoplasma gondii, Cryptococcus, Cytomegalovirus, syphilis, borrelia and cysticercosis (tapeworm).

Dementias caused by pathogenic organisms are reversible with drug treatment.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Category</th>
<th>Life Form(s)</th>
<th>Citations and Links</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Protein found in patients with transmissible spongiform encephalopathy (TSE) and Creutzfeldt–Jakob disease (CJD)</td>
<td>Prion protein (PrP)</td>
<td>The Protein Kingdom Extended: Ordered and Intrinsically Disordered Proteins, Their Folding, Supramolecular Complex Formation, and Aggregation, Prog Biophys Mol Biol., Jun-Jul, 2010</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Insects</td>
<td>Flies and locusts</td>
<td>Neuron, Volume 81 Supplemental Information A Systematic Nomenclature for the Insect Brain http://vosshall.rockefeller.edu/assets/file/ ItoNeuron2014S.pdf</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Chris Voigt, who I mentioned in Chapter 3, is a synthetic biologist. Chris and synthetic biologist George Church are considered top scientists in this relatively new field. Chris was a guest speaker at the University of Wisconsin in 2013. In his presentation, he said that the field of synthetic biology was 10 years old.

Antony Evans' Page at Kickstarter.com
Kickstarter.com, for those who are not familiar with the site, specializes in crowdfunding, a platform for raising money from a very large group of people which is potentially possible on the Internet. Google Antony Evans Synthetic Biology and Kickstarter.com to find Antony's page that describes his synthetic biology project. He raised $484,013 when he described steps to produce a bioluminescent plant using a genome compiler.

Antony's page is an excellent resource for learning about synthetic biology if you are not familiar with this new field.

Tissue Engineering
In a section titled "What is Project Cyborg?" Antony mentions tissue engineering. Google hospitals specializing in tissue engineering reconstructive surgery to see articles about synthetic biology at Johns Hopkins, Massachusetts General and Brigham Hospital.

Synthetic Biology STEM Classes for Teens Sponsored by NSF
Google synthetic biology STEM classes for teens to see links to extracurricular synthetic biology programs for teens.

STEM is an acronym for science, technology, engineering and mathematics. The word originated after an interagency meeting on science education held at the U.S. National Science Foundation. NSF director Rita Colwell chaired the meeting and she was director from 1998 until 2004. The NSF uses a broader definition of STEM to include disciplines such as nanotechnology and mathematical biology as well as a long list of other fields including aerospace engineering, chemical engineering, and astrophysics.