The four French playing cards suits used primarily in the English-speaking world.

Modern playing cards are grouped into three broad categories based on the suits they use: French, Latin, and German. Excluding Jokers, the French 52-card deck preserves the number of cards in the original Mamluk (Islamic) deck, while Latin and German decks average fewer.